Workshop for Police Officers on Critical Issues in Dealing with Victims of Child Sexual Abuse from 3 -4 December, 2015

Workshop Design

Sexual offences are a violation of human rights. They are condemnable, reprehensive and repugnant to what we stand for-human dignity and rights of individuals. These are acts of perversion, perpetuated with feelings of hatred, intended to hurt, brutal and unwilling and unsolicited gratification of personal needs. Child sexual abuse can result in both short term and long term harm, including psychopathology in later life. Physical and social effects, including depression, post traumatic stress disorder, poor self esteem, anxiety disorders, general psychological distress and disorder are instilled in them.

The children are a national asset, proactive planning and provision of services to children is an investment for the future of the country. Children have rights, and we, as adults, have duties and responsibilities towards them. Of late, child care and protection has emerged as a priority area for the Government. Recognition by the Government of this priority area is evident from the enactment of the Juvenile Justice (Care and Protection of Children) Act, 2000 and its Amendment Act, 2006 which focused specifically on child rights and rights-based approach.

However, offences of such serious nature against children were neither adequately addressed by the existing laws nor were they adequately penalized. Therefore, to deal with such sexual offences against children, the Government has brought in a special law "The Protection of Children from Sexual Offences Act, 2012". The Act has come into force with effect from 14th November, 2012 along with the Rules framed there under. The Act departed from the judicial processes in place for adults and prescribed specialized procedures in order to address the 'best interest' of children in a consultative regime, with participation from a multitude of stakeholders, including children, to arrive at practical and meaningful solutions to vulnerability of children.

An Overview of the Protection of Children from Sexual Offences (POCSO) Act, 2012:

The Act is a comprehensive law to provide for the protection of children from the offences of sexual assault, sexual harassment and pornography, while safeguarding the interests of the child at every stage of the judicial process by incorporating child-friendly mechanisms for reporting, recording of evidence, investigation and speedy trial of offences through designated Special Courts. The Act which is gender neutral in nature defines a child as any person below eighteen year of age and is gender-neutral. The Act identifies six types of sexual offences namely:

Penetrative Sexual Assault (Sec. 3); Aggravated Penetrative Sexual Assault (Sec. 5); Sexual Assault (Sec. 7) ; Aggravated Sexual Assault (Sec. 9) ; Sexual Harassment (Sec. 11) ; Using child for Pornographic Purposes (Sec. 13). The Act deems a sexual assault to be "aggravated" under certain circumstances, such as when the abused child is mentally ill or when the abuse is committed by a person in a position of trust or authority vis-à-vis the child, a family member, police officer, teacher or doctor. People who traffic children for sexual purposes are also to be punished under the provisions relating to abetment in the Act. The Act prescribes stringent punishment, graded as per the gravity of the offence, with a maximum term of rigorous imprisonment for life, and fine. The Act calls for a role of child protectors among others, for the police as well, during the investigative process, makes provision for the medical examination of the child in a manner designed to cause as little distress as possible and provides for special Court that conduct the "in-camera" trial and without revealing the identity of the child, in a child-friendly manner. In order to ensure effective implementation of POCSO Act, 2012 it is essential to orient one of the key players, i.e. the Police/Special Juvenile Police Unit (SJPU) as to ensure that all cases are duly registered and properly prosecuted under POCSO Act, 2012.
